
Prototype She's Held Model For Future

Son Jim's Wife 'Subtle Beauty'

Sculptor Says Boston
Girl's Type Will Dethrone Stars

WASHINGTON, April 23 (INS)—Mrs. James Roosevelt, daughter-in-law of the President, was described today as the "probable prototype of the future American beauty" due to supersede the present ideal of the movie star and the girl in the cigarette advertisements.

Lawrence Tompkins, well-known American sculptor, who has been in Washington for the past two weeks modelling a bust of Mrs. Roosevelt, returned to New York to prepare the completed portrait for exhibition with a collection of the work at the Reinhardt Galleries there.

Young Mrs. Roosevelt is the former Betty Cushing, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Harvey Cushing of Brookline, Mass. She married James Roosevelt eight years ago.

Dr. Cushing is the noted brain specialist.

Before leaving Tompkins spoke enthusiastically of the "equanimity and delicacy of Mrs. Roosevelt's subtle beauty."

"INTRIGUING" TO ARTIST
He described her high forehead and cheekbones, her deep eyes and firm chin as representative of a "brooding intelligence."

From a purely artistic point of view he praised Mrs. Roosevelt's coloring, "which appears blonde on moment and brunette the next," as "intriguing."

"Mrs. Roosevelt is not a typical modern American beauty," he said, "but I hope she will be the prototype of the beauty of the future."

Bernard Shaw once remarked that nature imitates art and proved his paradox by painting out the resemblance of famous beauties to the painting and not the painting to the person preceding them.

NEW TYPE FORESEEN
It may be that the artist has nothing to do with it, except his eagerness to recognize the runner of a new type that nature is trying out.

"It may be this is the explanation of Shaw's paradox, because although I have never seen her, I feel I have fallen for her subtle catching all the requisite elements of a modern beauty."

"I should like to live to see her type supersede the present American ideal popularized by the cinema and the cigarette advertisements."

Jackie's Mother Ready to Explain Guardianship

Attorneys for Coogan
Allow Her to Alter
Sworn Statement

HOLLYWOOD, April 23 (AP)—Jackie Coogan's mother, stating T'd go through fire and water for the boy, was given permission today to alter a sworn statement she made last Monday in the suit filed by her son for an accounting of the money he earned as "The Kid" of the silent screen.

The mother, Mrs. Arthur L. Bernstein, was the right to change her statement, says young Coogan's attorneys agreed she should be allowed to give a more complete account of early financial dealings with her son, saying Jackie was styled as a million-dollar star of the screen.

WISHED TO EXPLAIN
Mrs. Bernstein said she wished to explain the guardianship petition she had filed and the decreased amount she had received in 1923 in probate court in which they declared their intent to establish a trust fund for their son's earnings.

Mrs. Bernstein previously testified she never planned to establish a trust fund for Jackie.

Argument on the question of appointment of a temporary receiver for all Bernstein and Coogan property pending the outcome of Coogan's suit against his mother and step-father was continued until May 2.

DOES NOT RECALL INCIDENT
"Jackie is my son," said John Coogan's son, said the mother. "Why should I have wanted to be his guardian, that it may have been a technical legal procedure?" she asked. "I honestly recall nothing about it."

For two years after he was of age, Jackie remained with his mother. But until he married Betty Grable did he leave the home hearth, the mother said.

Jackie Coogan is pictured with his lovely bride, Betty Grable, of screenland. Jackie is constantly at his side as he battles his mother and step-father for his large screen earnings. Urges Training
Of Youth for Marriage

A stirring plea for a nation-wide program to train youth in the requirements of marriage so that they may avoid divorces brought about by ignorance was voiced by Judge Kenneth D. Johnson, former Quincy district court special justice, to members of the Massachusetts board for Social Hygiene.

Speaking at the annual conference of the society in the Copley Place, Judge Johnson declared a much easier to get advice on buying a house or raising children than on the fundamentals of happy matrimony.

Some of his suggestions for this program were a course in biology for every high school pupil and a similar course of more advanced nature for college students.

Establishment of marriage counseling clinics and a graphic program that would use the newspaper, radio, cinema, pamphlets, radio, cinema, pamphlets and other means to spread advice.

Parties to a marriage can be adjusted to a change in status through the marriage, more easily and more smoothly if they are prepared for the proper preparation for marriage, Judge Johnson said.

WIFE'S TROUBLE
The marriage which is cracked wide open—the marriage which finds the husband in one law office and the wife in another—the marriage which is headed for the divorce court—that marriage is usually beyond any chance for human adjustment.

Marriages dissolved by divorce and remarriages that are maladjusted produce broken homes, the speaker said in the disintegration of the family unit, one of the most inevitable decline and fall of society.

Dr. George Gilbert Smith, director of the association for the coming year, declared the problem of the family unit, centered in the problem of social hygiene.

Roosevelt's Own Story: His Good Neighbor Visit Bears Fruit

Buenos Aires Conference of Vital Importance to 3 Americas

ARTICLE NO. 28

On The Good Neighbor Policy (IV)
A Comment of Franklin D. Roosevelt from His Forthcoming Book.

(Editor's Note)—The desperate war between Bolivia and Paraguay in the Chaco ended formally in October, 1935, with an agreement reached at Buenos Aires. To President Roosevelt it seemed a favorable moment for all the American Republics to consider means of guarding against a repetition of such disasters. His idea was embodied in a personal letter, sent on January 30, 1936, directly to the President of the United States. He proposed that through diplomatic channels, He adopted this unusual procedure, he said, because "the questions at issue are of such vital concern . . . as to warrant a personal interchange of views."

Following is the last of four articles in the President's hitherto unpublished comments on the origin, growth and application of the Good Neighbor Policy.

To my personal letter to the Presidents of all the other American Republics, I received an immediate and enthusiastic response.

The message suggested a conference of American Republics in the interest of permanent peace in the Western Hemisphere. By agreement, the capital of the Argentine Republic, Buenos Aires, was selected as the meeting place, and invitations to attend in person were thereupon extended to the Presidents of all the American Republics.

A subsequent meeting was held to draw up the agenda of the conference. This committee, composed of representatives of each of the American Republics, suggested the topics it wished to see included in the agenda.

All Governments Approve Agenda

The program was upon the principal of unanimity in accordance with prior precedents for inter-American conferences. It was submitted to the governing bodies of the Pan American Union and was formally approved by all of the governments concerned.

December 1, 1937 was set as the opening date of the session.

During the conference the American Governments consulted with each other, with respect to specific conventions or resolutions based upon the agenda. These were approved and discussed in the conference, and in many cases, the conference was able to reach a unanimous agreement.

I think it is fair to say that the conference, planned and held in Buenos Aires, was the most important inter-American conference since the signing of the Montevideo Declaration in 1933, which was the first step toward the establishment of a permanent inter-American conference.

When I made this first suggestion for the Conference, all of us had been watching with apprehension the rapid development of the European situation. The conference was held in the midst of the European crisis, and it was clear that the effects of the European crisis were being felt in the Americas.

Ask Public Aid To Save Freedom For the Press

Editors Warn Future
Of Democracy Rests
On Newspapers

WASHINGTON, April 23 (AP)—The American Society of Newspaper Editors asked the American people today to help defend the freedom of the press.

The editors pledged themselves to defend their papers with all their resources, but they urged the public to do the same.

"Unfortunately all citizens do not think through the meaning of the press," the editors said. "It is the most profitable privilege of the citizen, and it is the right of all the people and the chief instrument of representative government."

DEMOCRACY'S LIFE
A free press is the life of democracy. It is the only way in which the people can know what their government is doing and what it is planning to do.

Henlein Seeks State
Within the Nation
For Sudetens

By PIERRE J. HUSS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

BERLIN, April 23.—Konrad Henlein, hard-bitten leader of the Sudeten Germans in Czechoslovakia, today will demand the right to create a self-ruling Sudetenland out of the full quota of the Sudeten Germans.

Strong and comprehensive demands for the 800,000 Germans in Czechoslovakia, it was learned today, will be laid out at a two-day meeting of the party at Carlsbad.

Henlein's words would outlook become the ruling spirit of the Sudetenland that Henlein would set up, according to advance indications.

He will insist that all local government administration, police and municipal power be in the hands of the Sudeten Germans. Henlein would make the German party of Czechoslovakia a one-party state, he said.

Garden Party Climaxed Ford Visit Here

Henry Ford's visit to Massachusetts was over today, climaxed by an informal party to 300 members of the National Farm and Garden Association at the motor magnate's Wayside Inn in Sudbury.

A short while before he and Mrs. Ford left for Troy, N. Y., on their way home to Dearborn, Mich., they played host to the association members at an old-time gathering which was featured by cheery salutations and a lack of formal etiquette.

Ford, the only man present at his wife's tea party, made the rounds of all tables and chatted with the guests. Mrs. Ford seemed delighted at the company of her husband, pointing out frequently:

"You see, I brought him along."

$5000 DONATION

To her it was "Henry this" and "Henry that," with no pretense at formality among her fellow members of the garden association.

Ford himself declared his attendance at the tea party was one of the more pleasant occasions of his visit.

Mrs. Ford donated $5000 to the association, which will be used for the expense of a national field secretary.

The motor magnate reiterated his hope that every person, even city dwellers, will find a way to "grow something." He declared America's riches will come from the soil and expressed confidence that the nation is going to new and greater heights.

DECENTRALIZE, HIS PLEA

He advocated a policy of decentralization, with manufacturers running small plants efficiently rather than trying to build great organizations, as a way out of the recession.

He said he planned to open a small plant at Sudbury for manufacturing a part for his automobile.

The Fords left immediately after the party for Troy, where the motor magnate will inspect one of his plants. He had no more to say concerning his conference with President Roosevelt Wednesday.

Public's Favor Is Desire

By LESLIE GOULD
International News Service
Financial Writer

NEW YORK, April 23—"My friends of long standing and boss back the days when Cyrus Curtin owned the Post, Paul Willard Garrett gave a speech at the advertising agencies conference at White Sulphur Springs makes some interesting comments on the much misunderstood subject of public relations."

Paul Garrett should know something of the subject, for he is public relations director for the General Motors Corp. He was brought into that organization by Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., before he left G. M., finally to become U. S. Steel President.

Public relations is probably the uppermost subject in the minds of all business men—small or large.

"In some quarters the desperate situation of circumstances has encouraged a naive view of the fact that because this thing called public relations would really turn out to be a new form of industrial salvation, atoning for past sins and promising a blissful future."

"Press agents, hack writers, publicity hounds, lobbyists, publicists, pseudo-scientists, straw vote experts and dozens of other 'specialists'—good, bad and indifferent—have been drafted to perform that psychology face lifting operation known

"PUBLIC" DEFINED

Garrett thinks it should be called "Relations with the public" and by public he considers it refers to the "folks who build the product, those who distribute them. Those who buy them. Those who own the business. Those who live in the plant community. Those who supply materials."

He adds, "But the immortal thing is that they are all customers—members of the largest of all groups—the consuming public."

He believes that the idea of public relations should be based on placing the interests of the customers, and it is to those people that it should tell its story counteract the half truths and cries of economic royalism.

As an answer to those who would change the American system of government and private enterprise in business, Garrett points to the facts:

"We have 6 per cent of the world population, we have 50 per cent of the world's telephones.
"We have 44,000,000 savings bank depositors.
"We spend more for education than all the rest of the world.
"We have 64,000,000 people protected through life insurance.
"We have a radio for every 4 persons.
"We have enough automobiles for every man, woman and child to go riding all at once on Sunday afternoon."

EXPLANATION NEEDED
And he says:
"Nobody has ever made more than a feeble effort to explain why these benefits exist here and why they do not exist in any other country in the world. Some of the fallacies that are undermining the American system and which must be corrected by intelligent public relations

"The one that sets up class hatreds by declaring that industry is a device operating for the unholy benefit of a few economic royalists."

"That business went on a sabbatical strike to bring on this depression to embarrass the New Deal and to embarrass labor."

"That the way to create buying power is to level down from the top."

"That the way to spread wealth is to divide it not to multiply it."

"That the machine is driving men into idleness."
"That the salary of the boss comes out of their (the workers') pockets."
"The fallacy of fallacies—the strange belief that bigness in industry somehow is synonymous with badness, as if size had anything to do with morality."

Tax Bill Fails To Aid Markets

Traders Wait
For Final
Action

NEW YORK, April 23—The

Salesmanship
Democratic

House-Senate committee compromise on the tax revision bill failed to stimulate stocks in today's market and, after an early quiet extension of yesterday's rally, leaders settled down to a do-nothing position.

While Wall Street generally has been in agreement on constructive, trading advances have declined to stand aside pending final action by Congress on the measure. Unchanged to a shade lower at the close of the day, the feelings exceptionally slow, were W. S. Steel, General Motors, Chrysler, Goodyear, Goodrich, Monogram, Ford, Packard, International Harvester, Boeing Aircraft, General Electric, General S. J. American Telephone, American, Westinghouse, Southern Pacific, Chesapeake and Ohio. Retaining advances up to a point the "equid" technique which prevails in totalitarian states. The tradition of Persuasion, the State of Indiana has made an admirable attempt to put the "equid" technique to rest, on the idea that they are getting their money's worth out

The undertaking is of nationwide interest as unquestionably the most important in the industry under the aegis of more than any other industry in the world. It is a work at them, excessive in amount and arbitrary in its execution. The amount of investment among taxpayers,

The leadership in Indiana has enough foresight to recognize that government rests on a stronger base when it is supported by taxpayers rather than by borrowing from whom taxes have been levied.

In this belief, Clarence A. Jackson, director of the Indiana gross income tax division, has prepared a pamphlet for distribution in the language of consumers' prices.

Financial quarters noted forecasts of employment this month may equal, if not better the March level, despite possibly further layoffs. The effect of the recession on the building industry is causing influence here. It was said, were the much improved prospects in the building construction field. It was recalled that the latest figures from the Bureau of Economic Analysis indicated retail jobs last month were up more than 25-over February. The suppliers of the companies manufacturing the tanks sensed the likelihood of heavier exports as a result of a recent revival of interest by England and France in the tanks of the United States. The engineers was that if these countries decide to purchase planes on a large scale in the United States, tractors for military purposes may also be required.

Survey Workers Face Loss of Jobs

With the state refusing further financing, Indiana cuts the cost of operation, 425 engineers and laborers who have worked for four years on a coast and geodetic survey project in the state department of public works today faced the possibility of dismissal.

The survey is conducted with VPA funds under the direction of the public works department. A recent federal ruling forbids the granting of funds for projects in which the man-year cost is greater than $950.

Unfortunately—although most of us are tax conscious—too few of us are, shall we say, intelligently tax conscious. Boiled down to the final analysis, many of our citizens feel that they have to pay too high a price for their governmental services. We feel the same way about many NEWBURYPORT April 23—Mrs. Elizabeth M. Ayers today replaced Lewis A. Furlong as supervisor of Old Colony House, a 10-story building which houses the state's available list of civil service candidates.

Furlong, ousted on charges of discrimination and favoritism by the Old Colony House board, is expected to fight to retain his position in court. He was appointed to the post by former Gov. John F. Kennedy.

But, whereas we can reject the temptation to buy a new home or a new suit, we have little if any choice as to whether we will be taxed or not. We have believed upon us by Congress and the Legislature.

The first step toward understanding the tax problem in our judgment is to realize that our total tax bill represents a multitude of governmental services.

WASHINGTON, April 23 (INS)—In commemoration of his leadership in the recent round-trip good will flight of six United States bombers from the Bureau Area and back to Los Angeles, Robert Olds today received the distinguished flying cross from the Secretary of War Harry Woodring.

The same must be done in analyzing the tax problem. You might find it very interesting to go over the list of governmental services and check off those you would like to see your federal, state or local government curtail or discontinue."

Stage Star Sought To Co-Star With Alice Faye

HOLLYWOOD, April 23.—A top price, I understand, was paid by Darryl Zanuck for "By the Dawn's Early Light," a story Gene Markey authored and sold several years ago to RKO.

He wrote it originally for Joan Bennett, but after they separated it was never produced and when Zanuck heard of the story he let no time in nabbing it.

'Test Pilot' Tops at Loew's

THE EAST

By PEGGY DOYLE

When better aviation dramas are made, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer may make them. Until then, that studio's "Test Pilot," current attraction at Loew's State and Orpheum, the story, is the most magnificent sight-writing on the screen.

Clark Gable, Myrna Loy and Spencer Tracy are the picture's stars, but even their very exceptional acting skill is subordinate to the heart-stopping drama of manly motive flying with death.

There is something sublime in the flight in a trimmed-out biplane for a new altitude mark, in the magnificent power drive to test an army pursuit ship, in the Cleveland air race sequences. No matter how you slice this, it's a "make-believe" it comes out here as the measure of high adventure, of manly motive flying with death.

Next to the breathtaking sequences, Gable, the man in the picture, rather, the picture's heart, comes out best. He has never given a finer performance. To say he is splendid in the picture is to say he is splendid in the picture.

It is the enormous test pilot and Myrna Loy in the wife who is the picture's heart. She is the picture's heart, while he is recklessly strapping the bomb.

Tracy, Gable's loyal mechanic, is excellent. Brochure script, which the picture requires him to go on, is a masterpiece of its kind. It is as disastrous to him as it is to him, so he is the picture's heart.

Miss Loy, in one of those charming, casual, completely feminine roles she does so well in, is the picture's heart. She is the picture's heart, while he is recklessly strapping the bomb.

However, this picture is Gable's, and he is the picture's heart. He is the picture's heart, while he is recklessly strapping the bomb.

The Brighter Side

By DAMON RYUNTON

(Copyright, 1939, F. Z. Broadhead, Inc., Boston, Mass.)

We manage to read through quite a lot of modern fiction in the course of a year. We like to see what the boys and girls are writing about, and we like to see what the boys and girls are writing about.

A good many of the boys and girls are writing about the same thing, and we like to see what the boys and girls are writing about. We like to see what the boys and girls are writing about.

We would have been a bit disappointed if we had not seen a story about a woman who had to work for a living. We like to see what the boys and girls are writing about.

But until "The Yearling" came along, it was a story about a boy and a girl. We like to see what the boys and girls are writing about. We like to see what the boys and girls are writing about.
